

Products where design blurs the lines between art and functionality

INDOOR SUNSHINE

Evidently, the Dawn to Dusk lamp is based on sunrise and sunset; a phenomenon that is enjoyed the world over. The vertical floor and table lamp by Haberdashery has a sliding light head that changes colour as it moves up and down. The light remains in an off position at the base, emits a low intensity red hue as it moves upwards, then slowly changes to orange, and finally, right at the top, emanates a bright white light. The light head can be rotated around completely, giving users the option of having direct or ambient light. A contemporary piece of lighting in a minimal geometric design, Dawn to Dusk is a softer take on sunlight, using it as a means to unwind and even fall asleep.
